Subject: Indigenous Energy Support Programs Redesign webinar

The IESO is hosting a webinar on July 24 to seek feedback from communities and stakeholders on the proposed redesign of the Indigenous Energy Support Programs (ESPs). The webinar will also provide a summary of feedback received through the surveying conducted in February 2020.

The IESO's Indigenous Energy Support Programs include:

- Community Energy Champion Program provides funding support to First Nation and Métis communities and organizations to hire a designated community energy champion to help plan, implement and evaluate energy-related priorities.
- Indigenous Community Energy Plan Program provides funding to support First Nation and Métis communities and organizations to develop and maintain a community energy plan designed to enhance community energy security.
- Education and Capacity Building Program funds projects that help build the understanding and skills needed for managing and participating in energy projects.
- Indigenous Energy Projects Program provides funding support to First Nation and Métis communities and organizations to assess and develop energy projects and partnerships.

The July 24 webinar is scheduled from 10:30am to 12:30pm, and registration is online. For more information and to review the presentation materials in advance, please visit the Indigenous Energy Support Programs Review webpage.

Thank you,
